

Introducing “ Henry Malik El-Tamer”

A former professional basketball player, born in Germany and raised between Saudi Arabia and the United States, Henry Malik El-Tamer transitioned to a distinguished career in international business and trade. Until the beginning of this year, he served as Head of International Affairs at the Wiesbaden Chamber of Industry and Commerce. In this role, he managed the trade documentation and certification department, led the chamber’s Foreign Trade Committee "Global Economy," and was an associate member of the Industrial Committee of Hesse’s capital. Additionally, he acted as Deputy Head of Economic Policy at the chamber.

He began his career in foreign trade promotion with Germany Trade & Invest (GTAI) after concluding his basketball career in 2014. As Manager in the authority’s customs department, he consulted the German SME sector on trade barriers in member states of the GCC and published extensively on the topic of customs and trade compliance while employed at the authority. Over the past decade, he has developed strong leadership expertise in economic and foreign trade promotion, building a network of influential policymakers and business leaders both in Germany and internationally.

His 15-year career in high-performance sports, spanning three continents, has profoundly influenced his leadership style, instilling resilience and strategic insight from competitive environments.

In January 2024, he founded El-Tamer Gesellschaft für GCC Strategieberatung mbH in Bonn, a venture he pursues with deep passion, especially as it pertains to fostering strong connections between Germany and target markets of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). This role is one he embodies fully, drawing from family roots in both Germany and Saudi Arabia, making him uniquely positioned to bridge these two worlds.
